temporal before relation,

TORYBOOK takes a discourse plan augmented with appropriate low-level (i.e., unlexicalized, or conceptual) rhetorical features and produces a sentence plan without discarding rhetorical information. It then revises and lexicalizes discourse markers concurrently before passing the results to the surface realization module for production of the surface text.

Consider the following sentences in a short text plan produced by the generation system:

1. In this case, Mr. Curtis could no longer be tried for the shooting of his former girlfriend's companion. $<$ [$\triangleright$
